

AfterTalk.com Launches Therapist Portal for Grief Counselors

AfterTalk has recently launched a Therapist's Portal to help those counseling the grieving manage therapeutic writing assignments. AfterTalk offers online grief support for those dealing with the loss of a loved one. Our interactive site includes articles, resources, and interactive tools. AfterTalk is free and non-denominational.

The idea for a Therapist's Portal began at the April 2014 ADEC conference. In Dr. Robert Neimeyer's workshop, "Reconstructing the Continuing Bonds," he spoke about writing to deceased loved ones as a valuable therapeutic tool.

Our interactive platform allows clients to write to their deceased loved ones and privately share their "Conversations" with their therapists. Therapists who register can read their clients' writings through their own "Therapist's Portal." Therapists can enroll as many clients as they like.

AfterTalk is free for both therapists and clients, and secure. When you go to this link you will find a detailed explanation of how therapists and patients can use our writing tool: http://www.aftertalk.com/for_therapists. A link on the menu bar provides a client handout that explains the process.

To get the latest news about AfterTalk.com and AfterTalk Live on BlogTalkRadio.com, sign up for the Inspirational Quote of the Week on our homepage.

www.AfterTalk.com